tion of all the citizens. For this all important work every day now is golden, and every day lost might be paid for with a costly price of life and loss of business.

Let the city be theroughly purified while the weather is yet cool, and we think there will be very little to apprehend. We appeal to every one to join Dr. Blum in making the work of puri-fication universal and thorough. There is time enough, but no time to be lost.

WE learn that the Virginia Legislature has passed the resolution appointing three Commissioners to proceed to West Virginia to negotiate to a reunion of the two States and the adjustment of Reed's Cough Syrup the public debt. The mild and endearing tone of the resolution, which we published in full not long since, is admirable. It reads: "Resolved, That the people of Virginia deeply lament the diameniberment of the 'old State,' and are sincerely desirous to establish and perpetuate the reunion of the States of Virginia and West Virginia; and that they do confidently appeal to their brethren of West Virginia to concur with them in the adoption of suitable measures of co-operation in the restoration of the ancient Commonwealth of

We had not expected the Virginia Le-pislature to take final action on this subject at the present session. We sup-posed they would understand that the making of this proposition at the present juncture would not promote their aims among our people in the coming cam-paign. We can understand that by paign. We can understand that by keeping this project to themselves their friends here would be much more likely to succeed than if it was made known. The blunder thus committed puts our "conservative" friends in an awkward situation. They did not expect to be ready for this proposition before next winter. It will, therefore, be necessary for them to come out and declare their hostility to it. This, we apprehend, they will have no scruple in

A little better understanding as to the policy of the campaign seems to be needed either here or at Richmond. If the Richmond conservatives are not prodent they will ruin the prospects of THE author of "What Men have said about Women," Mr. Henry Southgate, a book auctioneer in London, has another volume nearly ready for the press. Its title will be "A Dictionary of Illustrated Fact and Suggestive Thought, Analytically arranged." The compiler says: "In this railroad age it has be-come a difficult matter for one to sit come a difficult matter for one to sit down and write thoughtfully a great book, or to read one. We want to get at the kernel at once; and it has occurred to the compiler of thise/Suggestive Dictionary' to endeavor to supply, as the means of doing this, a work that a mere literary man, who lives by the sweat of his brain, could scarcely accomplish, as it would inevitably consume too much time, without pay, and he must live as he works on. This is not the case with the compiler. being engaged in trade, collecting the materials for the book has been with him the work of his leisure evening hours, extending over many years. Consequently, these have assumed wondrous proportions, numbering some hundred folio volumes of MS, and illustration.

THE stirring appeal issued by the Fenian secretary of civil affairs is strangely misinterpreted. There is gists. nothing warlike about it. There is no intimation that fighting is intended anywhere. It is money that is called for, not men; and the contributions are to be "mobilized." If any zealous and self-sacrificing Fenian does not quite understand what the process of mobilizing funds is, let him visit the splendid headquarters in New York—both sets of them. It takes a great many mobilized contributions daily to keep up the rival establishments, their officers and retainers.

He witnessed undurance vices of the general disposition to callivate fully as much land as could be put into crops. The only fear is in regard to the instability of the contracts with the freedmen. At many of the interiowas there were numbers of planters. towns there were numbers of planters in eagor search of unemployed freedmen. There were some complaints of the unfaithfulness of the latter, but it was hoped that these would be less frequent. The scarcity of money was measurably supplied by the issue of small bills on the part of cities and corporations.

Secretary Seward.

A Washington special to the Chicago Republican has the following:

ecretary Seward, in an interview a a Pennsylvania member, grew y much excited over political mat with a Pennsylvania memory arrows much excited over political matters, and denounced Congress in the most violent manner. He said there was not a rebel in the country to-day; that that which is termed Johnson's policy is his; that he laid it out for Lincoln, who adopted it, and was carrying it out when he died; and that Johnson is merely continuing it. He declared himself in favor of the immediate admission of the Southern delegations, and the repeal of the lest oath.

THE income of the Government from internal revenue, thus far in the cur rent fiscal year, commencing in the middle of last year, has been something over two hundred millions of dollars, over two hundred millions of dollars, which, if kept up at the same rate, will make the aggregate of the year's receipts from internal taxation alone three hundred and twenty-five millions, and that would be one hundred and thirteen millions more than the internal revenue in the previous fiscal year, and nearly three times as much as that of the year which ended with June 30, 1864.
